VINCE LOMBARDI

Head Coach and General Manager

VINCE LOMBARDI — Head Coach

"We attempt to break down our opponents at their strongest points," the coach of the NFL champion Green Bay Packers, pointed out during the past season. "There is no more effective way to damage a team's morale, destroy its poise, than to attack and gain through or over his strongest position."

"Beat him at his strength and his weaknesses become weaker than ever."

That's a tough formula to follow, but Vince Lombardi, a one-time, 172 pound guard who was a member of Fordham's famed "Seven Blocks of Granite" in the 1930's, has made it work in an almost miracle-like manner.

In effect, he has changed the name of Green Bay to "Titletown, U.S.A." while engineering one of the NFL's most remarkable feats — that of making a championship club out of a cellar-dweller.

Green Bay won just one of 12 NFL games in 1958. That was the Packers' worst season in 40 years. Then the Lombardi regime began with the former Fordham star serving in the dual role of head coach and general manager.

The story of football in Green Bay, Wis., has long been one of the NFL's best known legends. Some of the greatest chapters in that city's gridiron history, however, are still being written by a transplanted Easterner.

He is Brooklyn-born Vincent T. Lombardi, a physics teacher who teaches football and a lawyer who doesn't practice law but lays it down in hardnosed fashion for his gridders.

He is also a coach with a most interesting football philosophy.

Where other mentors search for a foe's weaknesses, Lombardi looks for the enemy's strength.

The Packers bounced back with a 7-5 mark in 1959, earning Lombardi numerous "coach of the year" honors. But the best was still to come.

They captured the Western Division title the following year. Then the Packers climaxed their drive to the top by claiming the NFL championship the past two seasons with a 37-0 and a 16-7 victory over the New York Giants, Eastern Division titlists whom Lombardi at one time helped coach.

Even before the 1961 season got underway, the Packers' executive board in an unusual display of satisfaction and confidence rewarded Lombardi with a brand new contract even though his old one still had 3 seasons to run.

Today, the man who was born in Brooklyn on June 11, 1913, reigns as Green Bay's number one citizen.

A man of tremendous drive, Lombardi continued school after winning three football letters at Fordham, working toward his law degree. To help meet expenses, he coached at St. Cecelia High in Englewood, N. J.

There he ran up a string of 36 straight victories while winning acclaim for his work, the T-formation. It soon became obvious that he wouldn't do much practicing before the bar.

In 1947, he installed the T-formation for the freshmen at Fordham under Ed Danowski and the following year coached the varsity offense.

Lombardi in 1949 began a five-year career at Army, working in Army's T-attack. The Cadets had an unbeaten season in his first year.

He moved into the professional ranks as offense coach of the New York Giants in 1954 and promptly demonstrated dramatically the value of a balanced running and passing attack in pro football.

In 1959, he began a new career as head football coach at Green Bay and that spelled the beginning of this new era for the Packers.

JOHN "Red" COCHRAN — Backfield Coach

Red is in his eighth year of coaching in the National Football League having been the backfield coach of the Detroit Lions for three seasons before joining Vince Lombardi at Green Bay. As the backfield coach he is responsible for the offensive unit and works the press box phones with Hecker.

Cochran played professional ball with the Chicago Cardinals from 1947 through 1950 then accepted the backfield coaching spot at his alma mater, Wake Forest, from 1951 through 1955.

Cochran was a star athlete for Wake Forest in 1940, 1941 and 1946 and at the time of graduation could have chosen pro football or baseball.

Red's fiery enthusiasm rubs off on his players.

The Cochran coached world champion backfield led the league in rushing and scoring during the 1961 and 1962 seasons.

PHIL BENGTSON — Coach of Defense

Phil Bengtson has built some of the toughest lines in the NFL during his eight seasons with the 49'ers.

A native of St. Paul, Phil was an All-American tackle at the University of Minnesota in 1933-34 when the Golden Gophers were the scourge of the collegiate football world. After climaxing his playing career in the Shrine East-West game, he joined the staff of Don Faurot at the University of Missouri.

Phil came west in 1940 with Clark Shaughnessy and had an important role in the development of the famed "Cinderella" team that captured the Pacific Coast Conference title and trounced Nebraska in the Rose Bowl.

He spent four years in the Navy during World War II, returning to Stanford in 1946 as chief aid to Marchy Schwartz.

Phil became a member of the 49'er staff under Buck Shaw in 1951.

Bengtson brought the Packers from the worst team defensively in 1958 to its present highly regarded position.

BILL AUSTIN — Offensive Line Coach

Bill Austin, the youngest member of a young staff, graduated from Oregon State College in 1949 after playing tackle four years for the Beavers. He was a starter in the East-West Shrine Game of 1949 and also played in the Hula Bowl. In 1949 Bill played regular tackle with the New York Giants even though he was only twenty years of age.

At the very height of his career, he was called into service and stationed in Japan where he was Head Coach of the Far East champs at Camp Drake, Tokyo.

Austin rejoined the Giants in 1953. At the end of the 1954 season he was selected to play in the Pro-Bowl Game and in 1955 was named on the All-Pro eleven. Bill was selected for the Hula Bowl Game for the second time after a very fine year with the World Champion Giants in 1956.

Austin was line coach at Wichita University in 1958.

Green Bay lines under Austins' guidance have been called the finest ever produced in the NFL.

NORB HECKER — Defensive Backfield Coach

Norb Hecker in his playing days was one of the National Football League's finest defensive half-backs when playing with the Los Angeles Rams and the Washington Redskins.

A native of Olmstead Falls, Ohio, Norb was a former Baldwin-Wallace College Little All-American in 1950. He was captain of the Baldwin-Wallace football team and also participated in baseball, basketball and track.

Norb was traded to the Redskins in 1954 but decided to play with Toronto of the Canadian League.

In 1958 Hecker returned to Canada to become a player-coach for the Hamilton Tiger Cats with Jim Trimble.

Hecker played in 86 consecutive games and intercepted 28 passes in his six seasons in the NFL.

The defensive backfield, under Hecker's guidance, allowed less than 150 yards completed per game. This was good for the number two spot in the standings in 1959. Last year's defensive unit came up with many timely interceptions to break up enemy drives.

TOM FEARS — Offensive End Coach

Tom was the end coach on Vince Lombardi's first Packer team in 1959 and helped develop Boyd Dowler to "Rookie of the Year".

Fear is a coach accomplished at the techniques he teaches because he was a receiver par excellence for the Los Angeles Rams for nine years and ranks below only Don Hutson in the number career receptions. Both the Ram and NFL charts feature his name prominently.

Fears holds the NFL record for most passes caught in a season (84) and most passes caught in one game (18), oddly enough, against the Packers in 1950. Tom returned to the Rams for the 1960 and 1961 seasons.

ALBERT (Pat) PEPPLER — Player Personnel

Albert (Pat) Peppler joined the Deacons at the close of spring practice after eight years as an assistant at N. C. State. His chief responsibilities were working with the centers and linebackers.

Pat was a successful high school coach at Michigan's East Lansing and Grant high school, winning a state championship in football at each school, before entering the college coaching field.

He was a three-sport star at Shorewood, Wis., High School after his family moved from Baltimore, Md., to the mid-west. Pat enrolled at Michigan State in 1941, but entered the Army Air Corps after one year where he served as a basic flight instructor.

Pat lettered in basketball and baseball at Michigan State, from where he was graduated in 1948 with a B.S. in Physical Education. He is married to his former college classmate, Dora Jean "Lindy" Lindblom of Detroit. They have six children, three daughters and three sons.
